STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Lowndesboro is a unique antebellum plantation village which has changed very little since the mid-1800's. It consists of a collection of plantation houses built along one tree-lined avenue, with the plantation lands extending into the surrounding region. Twenty of the approximately thirty structures were built between 1819 and 1888, with the majority of the structures dating to around the 1830's.

Originally called McGill's Hill, Lowndesboro was settled in 1815 by thirteen families from Virginia and for many years was a widely scattered pioneer community. In 1830 when Lowndes County was created by an act of the Alabama Legislature, the settlement began to grow, aided by rich soil and proximity to the Alabama River.

Although it was predominately an agricultural settlement, trade and the establishment of two schools contributed to the prosperity of the town. Goods coming up the river from Mobile stopped at Newport landing leaving choice merchandise before it was offered for sale in Montgomery, a larger town but north of Lowndesboro. Two local taverns provided accommodations for the shoppers.

An excellent boys school, the Boy's Academy, was established and in 1840 the Female Institute was also established.

Lowndesboro was at its peak when the Civil War broke out. The village was spared any major property damage when General James Wilson made his march from Selma to Montgomery.

After the war the town never returned to its pre-war prosperity and in 1926 when the business section was destroyed by fire, it was not rebuilt. The majority of the structures have been restored and are used as private homes.
